Federal Spending Is Far Below Plans

The New York Times

By EILEEN SHANAHAN

Washington — The government has found itself unable to spend money this year as rapidly as it had planned, and many economists are beginning to think that this shortfall in federal spending is a major reason why the economic recovery shows signs of weakening.

The government's experts do not understand exactly why spending is so far below what was expected.

In the six-month period from January through June, the amount by which spending fell short of the original estimate was $7.5 billion, or 2% of the total budget. For the period from July through September, the underspending, or overestimate, was proportionately much greater.

All the figures for this period are not yet in, but officials of the Office of Management and Budget believe that total spending for the July-September quarter will be from $5 billion to $8 billion lower than the $102 billion they had expected as recently as July. This would be a shortfall of nearly 8%, if the $8 billion figure proved to be the correct one.

Judge Target Of 'Citizens For Justice'

By DEAN TERRILL

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — Some 280 "Citizens for Justice" spent 2½ hours Monday evening hurling verbal darts at County Judge Dennis Winkle, whom they hope to oust in the Nov. 2 election.

The unusual session in Gage County's 4-H Building had undertones of both a pep rally and prayer meeting as seven persons shared "testimonials," as they were termed, against the 39-year-old judge. They generally alleged harsh sentences and/or long probations against Gage and Jefferson County juveniles.

Linus Betka, the Beatrice chairman who claimed "divine guidance" is behind the removal effort, drew repeated applause for such emotional phrases as "justice is not fear; justice is fair." But between an invocation and benediction, many of the words were stern.

For example, former Beatrice resident Dale Rist, now of Lincoln complained about a five-year probation when his 15-year-old grandson had a first offense of minor in possession. He said "a little compassion" should accompany all judgments.

"I think conditions of this probation would almost make a criminal out of any boy," Rist said. He noted that the boy had a 9 p.m. curfew, for example, except on weekends.

A Southeast Community College student on the Fairbury campus Teddy Svoboda, said he came from North Carolina only two months ago and has had no personal experiences with Winkle. But he accused the judge of causing young people to "lose their respect for the establishment."

"A lot of my friends have become hardened by this harsh judge," Svoboda, editor of the campus newspaper, said. "They have become hell raisers and... soon they will turn to hate."

Mrs. Ruth Lawson of Beatrice, one of numerous irate parents attending, claimed her son "spent 28 days in Kearney for being one hour late" while on probation. But she also acknowledged that the youth was placed on probation at her request and that he had violated curfew "several times" prior to being sent to the Kearney institution.

Mrs. Carol Hughes of Fairbury noting that her 14-year-old was given six years' probation "because one warm can of beer" was found in a car where she had been a passenger, said some parents fear reprisals if they openly challenge the judge.

"They're afraid to put bumper stickers on their car if they have kids," she asserted of some 1,800 stickers which have been printed for the ouster campaign.

Some of the strongest words came from Roy Bartels of Beatrice, who said "I hate him today" because Winkle removed his (Bartels') wife from administering her mother's estate.

Bartels estimated that the crowd would have been "at least 100 larger" except for a letter to the editor published in the Beatrice Daily Sun. Written by an attorney but unsigned, it strongly defended Winkle's record on the bench.

Distributed along with several hundred bumper stickers were campaign cards urging voters to oppose Winkle on the election ballot. Under the Missouri Judicial Plan, the 11-year veteran must receive majority endorsement to remain in office another six years.

Questions About JFK's Assassination Unanswered

By VINCE BOUCHER
Star Staff Writer

Thirteen years after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, Congress has been moved by the will of the American people to reopen the investigation of Kennedy's death, said one of the speakers in a Monday night panel discussion at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The lecture, "Assassination — The Questions Continue," is part of a week-long series of talks on "Power and Conspiracy in America."

Donald Freed, author of the fictionalized account of the Kennedy killing, "Executive Action," said Americans are bothered by the unanswered questions in the case.

"Simply spoken, we are citizens gathered together, with our right to know, our need to know," he said.

Freed set the stage for the main speaker of the evening, author and attorney Mark Lane, who first questioned the facts in the Kennedy case in the 1966 book, "Rush To Judgment."

Lane asked the crowd at the outset of his talk, approximately 300 people, if anyone believed the Warren Commission's report that Lee Harvey Oswald, was responsible for President Kennedy's death.

The impact on the economy of lower-than-anticipated levels of federal spending is a matter on which most economists agree: less government spending than was anticipated means less overall demand in the economy than anticipated. This, in turn, means that the overall expansion in the economy was less than it would have been if the estimates had been realized.

Thus, many economists see the shortfall in government outlays as at least a partial explanation for what appears to be a slowdown, recently, in the pace of the business recovery. A major symptom of this slowdown has been a rise in the unemployment rate this summer and fall to around 7.8%, after a decline to 7.5% or less in the spring.

There is little agreement, even within the government, concerning what — if anything — should be done about the unexpected shortfall in government spending. The reason is that no one knows exactly why it is happening, and different reasons would dictate different remedies.

The Office of Management and Budget, the Council of Economic Advisers and the Pentagon (which accounts for about half of the shortfall) are trying to figure out what happened, so they can decide what, if anything, their response should be.

The attempt to determine the reasons for the failure to spend as much as expected has been going on for only a few weeks, although the shortfall had been first identified last spring.

The reason for the delay is that, until recently, almost everyone in the government thought they knew why the shortfall was occurring. They learned only a few weeks ago that their theory was wrong.

The now-discarded theory was that the shortfall was a result of a change in the government's fiscal year. Traditionally, the fiscal year ended June 30 and consequently all government agencies signed contracts and intended to spend all their appropriated funds before that date, so no appropriations would go unused.

This year, the government made a permanent shift in its bookkeeping year and when the usual bulge in contract-letting and spending failed to occur in May and June, the theory was that the bulge would show up in August and September — before the start of the new fiscal year which henceforth will be Oct. 1.

The expected bulge did not occur in August, however, and appears not to have occurred in September, either, although the September figures are incomplete. Government officials are thus looking for other explanations.

One popular theory is that the heads of government agencies simply padded their estimates more than usual this year, because they feared larger-than-usual cutbacks both by an economy-minded administration and by a Congress using new, tighter budget-control procedures.

Another theory is that the original estimates of the various agencies contained built-in allowances for expected inflation that turned out to be too large.

If either of these explanations, or the two combined, should prove to be correct, then the extra spending, in a sense, never really existed and would not pop up later.

There is a third possibility, however. This is that for a variety of reasons, the government has simply moved more slowly than it expected to sign contracts and pay money. If this should be the correct explanation, then the payments would have been postponed, and would start showing up later in budget figures.

There is some evidence — for example, in data on defense contracts — to indicate that the shortfall in spending was merely a result of contracting delays, according to administration officials. If this turns out to be the chief cause of the spending shortfall, then they would disapprove of the government's taking any steps to counteract the dip in spending, since they believe the dip would be temporary.

There is no indication that the slowdown in spending was deliberately engineered by the Ford administration.

The few officials who would discuss the political implications of the shortfall observed that it was a stroke of political bad luck that the magnitude of the underspending was not taken seriously for so long.

These officials noted that if the problems had been taken seriously in the spring, actions to keep spending up closer to the estimates might have been taken then. Had that been done, the apparent slowdown in the business recovery, just before the election, might have been avoided, they said.

Bryan Plans Pass Council By One Vote

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Bryan Memorial Hospital expansion plans narrowly cleared City Council opposition Monday and moved on to threaten court action and a possible mayoral veto.

The council voted 4-3 to approve the expansion plans. Voting in favor were Steve Cook, Dick Baker, Bob Sikta and Max Denney. Opposing were Sue Bailey, John Robinson and Bob Jeambey.

Immediate threats of court action came from area residents and the attorneys they have hired. Houghton Furr, of 1520 S. 51st, said he intends to sue to block the expansions on the grounds the hospital is breaking protective covenants.

Furr and attorney Dave Pierson contend the hospital agreed to the covenants when it purchased homes in the Shurtliff Piedmont Park Addition in order to make way for a parking lot.

William J. Wood, another attorney representing area residents, said that opponents will probably combine forces in the legal battle against the hospital.

Mayor Helen Boosalis said following the vote that she has not yet decided whether to veto the measure. She voted against the proposal as a member of the board of the Southeast Health Systems Agency.

The mayor has until Oct. 19 to hand down a veto.

In a presentation before the council, Bryan Hospital attorney Bill Lewis noted that the proposed expansion has the approval of the City-County Planning Commission, the Southeast Health Systems Agency and the State Department of Health's division of hospital and medical facilities.

Lewis said the hospital has scaled down plans on one point since they were first presented in June, in that the hospital no longer plans to acquire a small triangular park on the north edge of the hospital grounds for a parking lot.

In addition, he said, hospital officials have complied with requests that buildings be moved farther back from streets.

Being proposed is a long-range construction plan that includes eventual demolition of the original hospital and an expansion of 230 beds, as well as construction of two parking garages.

But hospital officials said they would return to the council before seeking to implement those portions of the long-range plan. The short-range construction plans are to build a doctors' office building, an adjacent 300-stall parking garage and a parking lot on the north edge of the hospital grounds.

Opponents hit hard at the inclusion of the doctors' office building, which would be built and owned by Kingery Construction on ground leased to the company by the hospital for $15,000 a year.

Attorney Pierson said that the hospital's request allowed a private developer to use it as a vehicle to escape zoning restrictions.

But hospital attorney Lewis said that the council recognized the "utmost importance" of doctors' office buildings adjacent to hospitals by allowing city-owned Lincoln General Hospital to budget for an expansion of its existing physician's building.

Candidates Eye Ethnic Support

By The Associated Press

A major ethnic holiday dominated the campaign movements of President Ford and Jimmy Carter Monday as they continued a quest for votes among immigrant families and their descendants. Ford, in a published interview, accused his Democratic opponent of "pure demagoguery" in recent campaign attacks.

Each candidate used a special Columbus Day event to attempt to gain favor among predominantly Catholic ethnic blocs of voters, viewed by some observers as a key to winning some populous industrial states from the Northeast to the Midwest.

At a wreath-laying ceremony at a statue of Christopher Columbus outside Washington's Union Station, Ford declared that "the people of the Old World still look to the New World as the champion of human rights. America has been their hope and their help and we will never let them down."

He made no mention in his brief speech of the Eastern European nations which have occupied a central place in recent campaign oratory, following Ford's remark in the debate with Carter last week that they were not dominated by the Soviet Union.

Later, aides announced that Ford invited leaders of about a dozen ethnic groups to the White House Tuesday to make clear to them his "longstanding position on Eastern Europe." Ford planned a public statement after the session.

Carter went to a Columbus Day Mass in Chicago with Mayor Richard J. Daley and various Italian-American political leaders, and was a feature attraction of the city's Columbus Day parade.

Daley gave Carter another ringing endorsement, praising him as a president who would eliminate "leadership without direction" and heard Carter declare that a joint commitment

First Lady Gets Mixed Up

Buffalo, N.Y. (AP) — Betty Ford, attempting to clear up any confusion about her husband's remarks on Eastern Europe, got mixed up herself when she referred to the Democratic presidential candidate as "President Carter" and "Sen. Carter."

Talking with reporters during a Pulaski Day parade on Sunday, the First Lady spoke of "the indomitable free spirit of those

Connie Boswell Dies At Age 68

New York (AP) — Singer Connie Boswell called her doctors to her side on Saturday and asked them to "let me die in peace and with dignity."

"If God wants me, I'm ready to go," said Miss Boswell, one of a noted sister-trio of the 1930s and a leading singer on her own in the Big Band era.

She died quietly early Monday morning at Mount Sinai Hospital.

U.S. To Give Israel Tank Finder

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is providing Israel with a new night-fighting anti-tank missile guidance system, American and Israeli officials said Monday.

Disclosure came during Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon's visit here to see President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Under the agreement, Israel will obtain the FLIR guidance system. FLIR stands for forward looking infra-red.

The system substitutes for standard radar and enables targets to be spotted from planes or on land at night and in bad weather. It cannot be jammed because it senses heat and is able to distinguish between such actual targets as tanks and inert objects.

Israel began asking for such a program after the 1973 Middle East war when it lost many tanks to Syrian gunners during night fighting but was unable to retaliate effectively because it could not spot its targets.

As explained by officials in both governments, the FLIR and possibly other military equipment will be provided under the existing $1.5 billion fiscal 1977 military aide program for Israel and will not represent an increase in the assistance or in its cost.

Initially, Israeli sources indicated that new missiles themselves were involved, but Kissinger said later Monday "we're not talking about new types of missiles."

He said the decision to give the guidance system came as part of the routine military aide relationship between the United States and Israel.

As he and Allon explained it, Israel provides a shopping list of weapons and related items in which it is interested. After consultation, the United States then informs the Jerusalem government of what items will be available. As in this case, it may take several months before the decision is made.

After his meeting with Ford, Allon told reporters that his nation seeks no new basic arms agreement.

"The (flow of) supplies we're looking for is very satisfactory," Allon said. "So I didn't need to ask for more at this particular time."

U.S. aid to Israel is "a continuing process of discussion," he said, but so far this nation has received "more or less what we expected" in negotiations.

Officials on both sides denied the new weapons arrangement has any relationship to the American presidential election.

Kissinger said "the United States made no announcement" of the arrangement. The first word came from Israeli sources.

Just three weeks before the 1968 election, the Democratic Johnson administration announced that it was selling Israel Phantom fighter bombers for the first time.

In 1972, about a month before the presidential vote, President Nixon announced a substantial increase in the number of Phantoms available to Israel.

relations with the military junta that governs Chile.

The intelligence officials said it appeared that the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency had virtually ruled out the idea that Letelier was killed by agents of the Chilean junta.

After the bombing, Letelier's friends repeatedly asserted that they had reason to believe he had been assassinated by DINA, the Chilean secret police. But the intelligence officials said they understood DINA was firmly under the control of the government of Gen. Augusto Pinochet, and that killing Letelier could not have served the junta's purposes.

N.Y. Times Summary

Grassroots Crime Fight Urged

Washington — A Justice Department official has urged black citizens in crime-ridden urban neighborhoods to set up community crime commissions that would spearhead a grassroots campaign against violence. The suggestion by Benjamin F. Holman, who has been director of department's Community Relations Service since 1969, hinted at a possible new direction for the agency, which was created in 1965 to help desegregate public places in the South.

Arkansas Aid Shift Proposed

Little Rock, Ark. — Gov. David H. Pryor proposed on Monday a massive shift in responsibility from state to local government in Arkansas. He told the state legislature that he would ask it when it meets in January to cut off millions of dollars in state aid to city and county governments and hold increased state spending for education to a minimum.

Thai Purges Begin

Bangkok, Thailand — Thailand's 5-day-old military regime began a series of purges Monday and accused a general of plotting with other army officers against the new government. A commission was formed to draft a new constitution.

Rhodesian Meeting Outlook 'Good'

London — British officials expressed optimism Monday that the upcoming conference in Geneva, to set up a transition government in Rhodesia, remained on track despite demands by African nationalist leaders for a postponement of the meeting and immediate transfer to black majority rule.

Widow Of Mao

Reported Seized

London (UPI) — Chiang Ching, widow of the late Chinese Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, has been arrested with three ultra-left associates and charged with plotting a coup d'état, two London newspapers reported Monday.

In a dispatch from Peking, the London Daily Telegraph said Chiang Ching, a former film actress and Mao's fourth wife, had been arrested with three members of the so-called "Shanghai Clique" which came to prominence in the Cultural Revolution of the 1960s.

The London Financial Times, in an undated story, also said Chiang Ching and three other leading radicals in the Chinese Communist Party were put under house arrest following an attempted coup against China's new leaders.

However, the newspaper said the reports are supported only by circumstantial evidence, which suggests the power struggle within the leadership before Mao died has since intensified.

The Daily Telegraph report from the newspaper's Peking correspondent Nigel Wade said three of Chiang Ching's fellow radicals in the Chinese Politburo were arrested and charged along with her. Those arrested with Chiang Ching were named as Wang Hung-wen, party second vice chairman, who is in his 40s; Chang Chun-Chiao, a first vice premier, about 63, and Yao Wenyuan, a leading ideologue and polemicist aged about 46.

Reverend's Mixed-Up Priorities

The Rev. W. A. Criswell's endorsement of President Ford in Dallas Sunday illustrates one of the problems organized religion faces in contemporary society, at a time which has seen a drop in church attendance and the questioning of most of society's institutions including the church.

The Rev. Mr. Criswell's simplistic summing up of the election of 1976 as being decided on the basis of which candidate consented to be interviewed by Playboy magazine and which didn't was asinine and no doubt insulted the intelligence of many devout churchgoers and many others who have need of what religion offers but who stay outside the church because such examples of superficial morality are all too frequent among the clergy and lay leadership. And as for the political situation, Criswell's comments were irrelevant.

Criswell is a powerful church leader, but his pulpit politicking certainly cheapened his reputation and the church's image.

With President Ford looking on in benign approval — lending some sort of undeserved dignity to the occasion — the shepard told his flock that Ford is to be preferred because the challenger, Carter, consented to be interviewed by a "salacious and pornographic" magazine.

Criswell is a powerful church leader, but his pulpit politicking certainly cheapened his reputation and the church's image.

Somebody's playing the game without a helmet, and we're not talking about President Ford.

No Voting Bad Logic

Out of some 1 million people eligible to vote, only about 800,000 bother to register. Out of those registered, 60 percent or less are likely to go to the polls in any given election.

The logic of those figures is really unexplainable. That citizens feel their one vote doesn't really matter is the most common explanation given but that is crazy reasoning to begin with.

If that reasoning were applied nationwide, no one would go to the polls and we couldn't even have an election. In that case, our representative, democratic form of government would simply go down the drain.

Another reason commonly heard is that the candidates give the voter such little choice, generally because the voter can't get excited about either of them. That is particularly true in presidential election years and true at this time.

Voters are now beginning to make up their minds as between President Ford and Jimmy Carter but there is widespread belief that neither of the candidates has ignited any strong feeling among the electorate. But that, too, is reasoning we fail to understand.

Professor, UNL

Students are the ultimate losers in President Varner's parity proposals between UNO and UNL. The entire system and the students' degree of professional preparation depend on maintenance of a graduate faculty that is respected and recognized by other schools because of its research orientation. UNL has such a faculty, UNO does not.

Therefore salary and program support must be kept higher at UNL, lest we lost our vital accreditation as a major university. One pays for excellence — reputable professors need the incentive of financial reward, much as do doctors, lawyers and other professionals. That is why President Varner's equalization suggestions are so mystifyingly naive for a supposed educator.

Students, at any rate, know the value of scholastic accreditation. UNO enrollment increased as soon as its diplomas were changed to read "University of Nebraska", though there was no appreciable change in the teaching personnel. The degrees were worth more by association with the professional faculty at Lincoln. Similarly, significant numbers of criminal justice graduates recently insisted that "Lincoln" be added to their diplomas, though the department of criminal justice is in Omaha. President Varner knows these things. Therefore his "push to parity" cannot be traced to academic or student concerns.

Perhaps the president's real motive is shown in his stated wish to avoid budgetary "civil war every year" in the legislature. He planned a formulaic approach to UNO-UNL budgets so the inter-campus confrontation over funding would be reduced and their local senators could be united behind a common systems appropriation for the "main war every year" against the governor. Seeing the regional interest of the powerful Omaha bloc in UNO, the president probably thought parity a small price to pay for their support. The efficiency of that approach can be seen in last year's record university appropriation. Unfortunately, this position also implies that UNL must accept inter-campus parity or suffer all-systems cuts affecting salaries and programs everywhere.

Even worse, the committee President Varner appointed to study formulas for equalizing UNO-UNL support made false assumptions about the composition and mission of the two faculties. Yet its findings were implemented to the tune of $500,000 for UNO next year. Luckily, Prof. Henry Baumgarten refused to be a member of "The President's Men". He filed a WASHINGTON — You have to wonder, at this half-way house in the presidential campaign, whether the brutal test is not beyond the limits of physical endurance and human intelligence. It is a marathon run at the pace of a 100-yard dash, and inevitably the runners falter, stagger, and blunder.

In the first half of the race, the spotlight was naturally and properly on the governor. He was new, comparatively young and inexperienced, and the news focused early on his successes, and then on his stumbles — "ethnic purity," the Playboy Magazine interview, etc. The faster he ran, the more ground he seemed to lose.

But lately, it has been the President who has had to take the field and he, too, has been fumbling on Eastern Europe and other things. In the first half of the campaign, he was trying to veto Governor Carter from his privileged sanctuary of the White House, but now that he's out in the open, he almost seems to be vetoing himself.

At least, the spectators, with three weeks to go, are finally getting a more equal view of both men, and this has been the objective of the Democratic Party's campaign from the beginning.

Somebody's playing the game without a helmet, and we're not talking about President Ford.

Long before Governor Carter captured the Democratic Party nomination, against the will of its political and labor leaders, Tip O'Neill of Massachusetts, the next Speaker of the House of Representatives, who has served with Jerry Ford for almost a generation, respects him, and even has an affectionate regard for him as a friend, has insisted that you had to know Ford well in order to know how little he knew.

The surprising thing about Mr. Ford is not that he seems to be slipping for the moment but that he has held up so well in the popularity polls, considering the disasters he inherited, the political record of the past few years, and the present economic indicators.

At no time did he ever question Richard Nixon's Vietnam or Watergate policies. At no time was he ever considered by his own party as a presidential nominee, or even as a vice-presidential nominee, until Nixon, who preferred Agnew, and after Agnew's disgrace, John Connally of Texas, had to find a substitute who would be approved by the Congress.

Mr. Ford barely won his own party's presidential nomination against Ronald Reagan, by accepting Reagan's platform, humiliating his own secretary of state, dumping Nelson Rockefeller, and finally insisting that Robert Dole of Kansas, of all people, should be his vice-presidential nominee and a potential president of the United States.

Council Issues Subpoena To Policeman

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council issued a subpoena to a Lincoln police officer Monday ordering him to appear before the civilian Police Review Board Tuesday when it hears a complaint lodged against the officer.

The council issued the subpoena despite arguments from the officer's attorney who said an internal police department investigation cleared the officer of the charges.

Only Councilman Bob Sikyta voted against issuing the subpoena.

Sikyta said Police Chief George Hansen created an internal affairs division to police the department. Sikyta said he was satisfied with the division's report and with Hansen's performance as police chief.

Sikyta, who voted against the creation of the board last year, said his position hasn't changed.

"In this day and age the police department needs all the support it can get."

Chief Hansen said the department talked to all the witnesses involved in the incident and that the report shows the officer "acted within the law."

"He did not do the things they said he did," Hansen told the council.

However, Police Review Board Chairman Jack Siegman urged the lawmakers to require the officer to answer board members' questions in order for the board to hear all the facts.

Lincoln police officer Roger Suhr is accused of abusing his authority in issuing a citation to a teenager on Aug. 15 near the recreation center at 23rd and O St. The complaint was filed by the youth and his father.

Suhr maintains he won't receive an impartial hearing on the matter because the seven-member review board is not empowered to conduct a judicial hearing.

Earlier Monday, Suhr asked Lancaster District Court Judge Herbert Ronin to grant a temporary restraining order to keep the board from meeting.

Ronin denied that request, saying the City Council acted within its authority when it created the board.

Suhr then said through his attorney he would not voluntarily appear at the board's hearing Tuesday night.

Attorney Murry Shaeffer told the court and later, the City Council, that the quasi-judicial nature of the board would deprive police officers of a fair hearing.

"A hearing before the Police Review Board in and of itself casts doubt on his ability to be a police officer," the attorney said.

Shaeffer said that the youth and his father who filed the original complaint also have made additional complaints against the officer to the mayor's office charging that the officer is harassing the family.

Shaeffer pointed out that the officer's assigned patrol duty covers eight to ten blocks and in the course of his job, the officer must drive by the complainant's house.

However, Shaeffer said, Suhr is being transferred to another area.

By making numerous complaints against an Officer, Shaeffer contended that "the criminal element" will be able to apply enough political pressure to force city officials to get rid of an officer who is doing his job.

Police officers also feel that they are being singled out for their actions since other city employees are not required to be held accountable to similar civilian review boards.

Carter Denies Rumors

Of Extramarital Affairs

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) — Jimmy Carter said Monday that rumors allegedly spread by Republicans that he once had an extramarital affair are "seamy... distasteful" and totally untrue.

President Ford's campaign committee denied it had any role in spreading the rumors about the Democratic presidential candidate.

However, columnist Jack Anderson, who first reported the story on the ABC-TV program "Good Morning America," said the rumors were fed to him by four staff members of the President's Ford Committee.

Anderson said he had found no truth to the rumors.

Carter said: "... It's just one of those kind of seamy things that is distasteful, but it hasn't hurt us because there is no truth to any of these allegations."

Anderson reported that "President Ford's campaign aides have been searching Jimmy Carter's past for a sex scandal." He said Republican sources supplied him with the name of a woman they suggested had once had an affair with Carter, and later added the names of four other women.

In Washington, William Greener, spokesman for the Ford committee, said: "Speaking for the top people of the committee, I absolutely deny that they had anything to do with the story, nor would they. If anyone around here were found doing such a thing, he would be fired on the spot."

In a telephone interview Monday night, Anderson said three of his four sources on the committee worked directly for Greener.

Asked about that, Greener replied, "If someone can step up and tell me who they are, I will fire them on the spot." Greener added that he had checked with members of his staff who had been deal with the press "and they said they hadn't done it."

Greener said a volunteer in Georgia had sent the committee "a memo containing rumors" about Carter "and when it got here, it was thrown away." Greener said he hadn't seen the memo but that campaign director James Baker had issued orders that "I don't want him (the volunteer) around any more."

Anderson said the rumor later was spread to other reporters, some of whom called him and said it had come from Republicans. "The only people who knew I had the allegation about Carter's romances were the Ford aides who planted them with me."

Carter told reporters that he heard about the story on Saturday. "It caused me and Rosalynn some concern at first," he said. "But I thought it was handled in a very good way by the news media."

Billy Carter Is Campaign's Token Redneck

Charlotte, N.C. (AP) — "I'm the token redneck for the campaign," said Jimmy Carter's younger brother Billy as he had a few beers, shook a few hands and passed out peanut-shaped pins at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The Plains, Ga., service station owner told reporters he is the only member of the Carter family not on a regular campaign schedule. "I guess that's because I make a living for the rest of them," he said.

"I've never been on a tractor in my life, never done farming," Carter, 40, said, denying press descriptions of him as a peanut farmer. "I own the service station, but I got somebody else running it for me. I run the business."

Chief George Hansen

Hansen: 911 System Not Big Enough

Police Chief George Hansen unloaded on the emergency 911 system Monday as he marshalled arguments in favor of hiring a consultant for $57,000.

Hansen said the 911 system is "totally inadequate" since it has only two phone lines into the department. If other police emergency phones lines were not available, Hansen said, calls would be delayed.

At issue is the proposed hiring of the Arthur D. Little firm to design a communications center in which police, firemen, ambulance companies and other emergency agencies could locate radio equipment.

But in addition to that duty, Hansen said, the consultant will help design a computer-aided dispatch center for the police.

And Hansen took a potshot at Firefighter's Union President Hobart Boswell, who had written the council a letter opposing the hiring on the grounds that local expertise could be found to perform the task.

"It's unfortunate that the man doesn't know what he's talking about," Hansen said. "He's never seen a computer-aided dispatching system."

Hansen said the system will help dispatchers locate in seconds the police cars which are closest to an emergency.

The City Council apparently found Hansen convincing as it voted 7-0 to authorize the contract.

City Council Chairman Max Denney started Monday's round of meetings with this timely observation:

"I wish Columbus hadn't discovered America. Then we wouldn't have this City Council."

The two women conducting the interviews will have identification to prove they are authorized to conduct the survey.

Funeral Traffic Ordinance Eyed

Omaha (AP) — Last spring an Omaha police officer was killed in an accident during a funeral procession. In another accident, two elderly women at the end of a funeral procession were seriously injured when they drove through a red light and were struck broadside.

The tragedies have led to discussion about a city ordinance that would make it legal for funeral processions to violate traffic regulations.

Former Omaha policeman Jim Kuhl operates a funeral escort service and he says that in funeral processions, "Everything we do will be illegal. We'll go through stop signs and red lights. We'll block lanes. We'll park on the wrong side of the street. I could go on and on about the things we do that are illegal."

Police Chief Richard Andersen has said that although funeral processions are mentioned in city ordinances, there aren't enough specifics for regulation.

The right of way, for example, is a vague area. Most persons assume a funeral procession has the right of way through a red light. But ordinances don't specifically say that, Andersen

City officials and representatives of the funeral business have been at work on a proposed ordinance for six months.

It is to be discussed Oct. 28 at the meeting of the mayor's traffic safety committee. It probably will be submitted to the City Council next month, said Robert Blankenship, assistant to the public safety director.

Attorneys are still working on the proposed ordinance. Basically, it would specifically state that a funeral procession has the right of way and make it legal to go through red lights or stop signs when the person in charge of the procession so directs.

Kuhl says he wants a good ordinance for safety reasons and so that he is protected legally.

At present, he says, he might be liable in case of an accident.

Omaha Stockyards Out For Volume

Omaha (AP) — The new president of the Omaha stockyards says there will be a lot of "knocking on farm doors" to bolster the volume of the exchange, now third largest in the country.

"We're never again going to turn the clock back to the days when millions and millions of animals went through Omaha," said James Smith, a native of Walthill, Neb. "But that doesn't mean that we can't attract more volume than we have now."

Smith heads Omaha Livestock

Market, Inc., the company that began operating the yards this month for the Chicago-based United Stockyards Corporation. United's parent firm bought the yards and buildings for $3.5 million in August.

Last year, 2.3 million animals were sold at the yards, about one half the volume a decade ago.

United does not have all the answers to increasing volume, Smith, 47, said. "It just takes a lot of hard-nosed, hard work. It means hitting the road, knocking on more (farm) doors and talking more farmers into doing business with you."

Smith said he will personally spend time on the road but that the 27 commission firms at the yards will have to make most of the effort.

Smith also said that attraction of a pork processing plant and a veterinary supply outlet to the yards might help increase business.

"We want to boil down the size of the yards a bit, but not on a big scale," he said, indicating that some unused pens on the 125-acre site will be removed so the land can be used for other purposes.

Stockyards at St. Paul, Minn., and Sioux City, Iowa rank above Omaha in volume, Smith said.

He said prices at Omaha are consistently higher than at other central markets because of competition among 12 packers that buy at the yards.

"From the standpoint of leadership in the industry, Omaha is still there. You get outside Omaha and people aren't saying the market here is dying," Smith said.

M. Thompson Found Guilty In Smith Killing

Lancaster District Judge Dale Fahrnbach found Mark William Thompson guilty of second degree murder Monday in the shooting death of another man last April.

Thompson, 25, pleaded guilty last Friday to second degree murder in the slaying of Thomas Duran, 26.

Judge Fahrnbach could have found Thompson guilty of the lesser charge of manslaughter.

Fahrnbach delayed further proceedings until a pre-sentence investigation is completed.

Thompson pleaded guilty to shooting Smith following an argument at the home of Thompson's sister, at 1817 N. 30th St. on April 10.

Thank You:

Lincoln, Ceresco, Wahoo, Ashland, Hickman, Seward, Milford, Waverly

Just a few weeks ago we had our Grand Opening. We are thrilled with your response. It's like our first store in Council Bluffs. Thousands of people are visiting us. They keep saying, "we sure needed a store like this."

So much merchandise was sold that, even with all the new fall fashions coming in, we started to run low.

After that first exciting weekend, our buyers contacted the great fashion manufacturers of the country, by phone, letter and personal visit to refill the store. Now all the new fashions are coming in every day, carton after carton.

As the only store in the area devoted completely to women's large size fashions at popular prices, we offer a real choice. Everything from foundation garments to winter coats. Coordinated sportswear, dresses, even uniforms.

You'll appreciate the variety. Using their 60 years of experience, our buyers have stocked a beautiful store. We who run it add many more years of experience. We know how to fit and please the larger woman.

Please accept our invitation to come and say hello. Browse. If you find something you like, we'll be happy to help you. You won't have to wait for a clerk. On the other hand, do all the looking you like, without bother. Try on things, see how they look and fit. You'll be pleased.

Parks May Get Federal Fund Aid

Environmental area in Bellevue.

He said some of the funds likely will help bring to reality Riverfront Development projects in the metropolitan Omaha area.

Crutcher said newly enacted legislation tripling the amount of money states receive through the Land and Water Conservation Fund will make available $80 million to Iowa and $80 million to Nebraska from now until 1988.

Matched with local and state funds, he said, the federal grants will create new park and recreation areas, hiking trails and public access points along rivers.

Crutcher presented Dr. and Mrs. Harold Gifford of Omaha with the U.S. Interior Dept.'s top citation for private citizens — the Outdoor Recreation Achievement Award.

The citation from Secretary of Interior Thomas Kleppe praised the Giffords for donating land to spur creation of the Gifford environmental area.

The Giffords' donation and a $675,000 federal grant forms the foundation of a 1,711-acre environmental education, outdoor recreation and farm study area along the Missouri River adjacent to Fontenelle Forest.

Police said the Benson Golf Course vandalism occurred on three occasions late last month and earlier this month.

The six, arrested by police during the weekend, were between the ages of 14 and 16. Police said vandals broke into a shed housing motorized golf carts, drove them over greens, and apparently used them as "bumper cars." Police said one of the carts was pushed into a creek.

In addition, police said other equipment in the storage shed was damaged when vandals set off fire extinguishers inside.

Deadline Set For Symphony Soloist Trials

The deadline for applicants wishing to audition for the featured soloist position with the Lincoln Symphony concert will be Nov. 1, according to Emmanuel Wishow, member of the symphony board.

Applicants must be students who have studied with a Lincoln teacher. Instrumental students must be between the ages 17-26 and vocalists 17-28.

Judges for the audition will be Paul Todd, music professor at the University of Nebraska-Omaha; Dr. Millard Cates, chairman of the music department at Hastings State College; and Jack Winerock, music professor at Kansas University.

A $5 entrance fee is required. The winners will receive a $100 award and the opportunity to perform with the Lincoln Symphony in its Jan. 18, 1977 concert.

Applications can be mailed to the Lincoln Symphony office, 129 N. 10th.

OL&B Railroad Still Receiving Tax Break

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Not a train track is in sight. But land owned by the Omaha, Lincoln and Beatrice Railroad is receiving a tax break as railroad "terminal property."

The Lincoln Alliance released information on its study of railroad property assessments at a news conference Monday.

The land described by the Alliance, on the corner of 48th and Garland Sts., is just one of about 10 properties owned by the OL&B Railroad which the Alliance believes may be improperly assessed.

The nine lots owned by the railroad were assessed at $3,250 in 1975 under a state statute that allows railroads to set a value for their own land.

Three lots adjoining the railroad property were assessed by the county assessor at $7,830 in 1975. These three lots are about one-third the size of the neighboring OL&B land.

The tax break for OL&B is even greater than the difference in assessments, according to the Alliance, a group of local community organizations.

Railroad terminal property pays only the city and airport tax levy (28.44 mills in 1975), while non-railroad property pays the full county levy (96.144 mills).

"All this works out to be an outrageous tax break for the OL&B since for its nine lots it paid only $92.43 in 1975-76 while the adjacent property owners paid $732.81 for the three lots."

A train hasn't crossed this railroad-owned land for more than 20 years, according to James Hewitt, attorney for the railroad company.

Passenger service along the track was stopped in 1928. There was some freight service to the University Place area until a flood washed out the track near Dead Man's Run in the middle to late 1950's, he said.

The track itself has been gone for a number of years and currently a miniature golf course and Sam's restaurant sit on the railroad land.

"I don't know where the error lies, but someone is being given a tax break," said Alliance Vice President Byron Peterson.

The blame for any possible error was passed from person to person and finally laid on unclear statutes by those in the tax business.

Lancaster County Assessor Fritz Meyer contended that it was the State Board of Equalization's job, not his, to check the railroad self-evaluations.

"You'd better talk to Bill Peters (state tax commissioner)," Meyer said.

While pointing out that the laws surrounding railroad property are complicated, Peters said that it is the county assessor who has the power to object to the self assessment.

The land is included in what is called "terminal property." Though the definition of terminal property in state laws is somewhat cloudy, this property is basically railroad-owned land within the city limits which is not being used in the actual operation of the railroad, Peters explained.

The railroad returns its valuation of terminal property to the county assessor and it is then up to the assessor to object to the State Board of Equalization if he thinks the valuation is incorrect, Peters said.

There is some railroad owned land that is not self assessed but is valued by the county assessor using the same criteria as he uses in other real estate, Peters said.

The railroad, once connecting Omaha, Lincoln and Beatrice, is currently used only for some switching.

The Lincoln Alliance, stating it is "shocked to find this apparent inequity," plans to expose "other possible abuses by the OL&B Railroad" when it meets with the County Board at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

NU Regents' Control Of Non-Tax Funds Upheld

By NANCY HICKS

Star Staff Writer

The Legislature overstepped its constitutional boundaries in both financial and administrative control over the University of Nebraska, a Lancaster County District Court judge ruled Monday.

The Legislature cannot control expenditure of non-tax funds raised by the university and cannot delegate Board of Regent authority to other state agencies, wrote Judge Samuel Van Pelt in a decision which apparently favors NU.

For several years the Legislature has controlled the spending of university (non-tax) cash funds through budget laws.

Last year the senators passed legislation giving some state agencies, including the Department of Administrative Services (DAS), control over some university functions in construction and data processing.

In the suit, which will probably be appealed to the State Supreme Court, Van Pelt ruled in favor of the university on the heated question of spending non-tax funds.

"The Legislature cannot control the use . . .

of funds generated by university activities, including student fees," Van Pelt wrote.

"Such university cash funds are subject to being disbursed only by order of the Board of Regents," Van Pelt wrote.

Last year NU raised more than anticipated from these non-tax sources, but could not spend the funds because the extra money was not included in the Legislature's appropriation laws.

The suit, brought by the regents against the state of Nebraska, asked that certain jurisdictional disputes, including financial control, be resolved.

In oral arguments on the year-old case, attorneys for both the regents and state agreed that the Unicameral does control the flow of tax funds to the university and that the regents govern the university under the direction of the Legislature.

The question before Van Pelt was just how broad that governing power is under the state constitution.

Van Pelt said that the framers of the constitution did not intend to give the regents "a free hand in the government of the university."

The Legislature can add to and delete from the current Board of Regents duties through legislation, Van Pelt wrote.

However, in the present absence of constitutional authority, the Unicameral cannot delegate any authority to another state agency, Van Pelt ruled.

Specifically, Van Pelt said that the Legislature cannot turn regental authority over construction plans and projects and data processing functions to DAS.

In addition, the Legislature cannot give the governor power to accept or refuse gifts on behalf of the university and cannot give the state personnel system authority over university employees. One exception is the office and clerical employees put under the state personnel plan by the regents in 1943.

"The Legislature itself may fix and determine the manner in which raises are to be given to employees of the Board of Regents," Van Pelt ruled.

Van Pelt also wrote that the Unicameral cannot direct individual university employees but should confine valid directions to the Board of Regents.

Reactions from regents were excepted optimistic.

"This is about what we hoped for," said Robert Koefoot of Grand Island. "The Legislature had the purse strings in the budget, but the regents, on the other hand, are the governing body for NU and they should be allowed to govern."

The court decision does have an impact on future coordination of post-secondary education, said Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, who is chairing a study into this coordination.

The opinion seems to rule out establishing any strong coordinating commission without a constitutional amendment (allowing the Legislature to delegate authority to another state agency), Warner said.

Without this amendment the Legislature may accomplish coordination legislatively by determining the role and mission of colleges and universities, then using the appropriation process to enforce coordination.

Despite the court decision, the Legislature will still retain overall budget control, Warner said. "When we appropriate money we will know the amount of cash funds and how it is being used," he said.

Chambers To Raise Stink Over Guard 'Mock Hanging'

By The Associated Press
State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said Monday he plans to contact President Ford and other Washington officials about what he called "a very serious incident" involving a Nebraska Army National Guard unit that underwent training at Ft. Gordon, Ga., in May.

Chambers would not elaborate on the episode, but Deputy Adj. Gen. Burl Johnson said it had to do with the reported "mock hanging" of a black Nebraska guardsman by some guardsmen from Mississippi. He said the Nebraskan was a member of the 67th Signal Platoon from Lincoln.

According to Johnson, some guardsmen from the two states were having a drinking party during the Memorial Day weekend at their camp when the incident occurred. He said that a Nebraska Guard investigation indicated that a noose was placed around the black guardsman's neck and the rope was tossed over a tree limb and tied to a vehicle as though the man was going to be pulled up.

Johnson said the Nebraskan was not hurt, "and most of our reports indicate that he took it as a joke and stayed with the party for some time."

However, Johnson said the man later returned to his barrack and "became very emotional about what had happened."

Johnson said the investigation showed the man either fell against a plate glass window, or struck it out of emotion with his fist.

Johnson said the guardsman's hand was severely cut, and surgery was required, after which the young man was evacuated back to Nebraska.

The colonel said that as far as can be ascertained, no Nebraskans were involved in the mock hanging, "although two Nebraska guardsmen were apparently present." He said there is some question, however, "as to how attentive they were to what was taking place."

"It was a stupid prank that appeared to have gotten out of hand," Johnson said.

Chambers said he was concerned about a possible "coverup."

He said Nebraska Adj. Gen. Maj. Gen. Francis Winner "has

Schlitt For Aggressive Cooperation

Natural resources districts should be aggressive in working with the Game and Parks Commission on development of outdoor recreation and wildlife habitat, according to Dan Schlitt, candidate for director of the Lower Platte South NRD.

Schlitt said in a press release that NRD directors should take the initiative in developing programs in cooperation with the Game and Parks Commission that would meet the particular needs of their part of the state.

"The eastern part of the state needs more recreation areas and parks," Schlitt said. "The Lower Platte South NRD can and should act to meet that need."

The Legislature has increased hunting and fishing fees and created a habitat stamp to provide needed funds for the Game and Parks Commission, he said, and NRDs can help maximize the impact of these new funds.

New HP-67 Fully-Programmable Pocket Calculator from Hewlett-Packard gives you incredible programming power.

The new HP-67 has the greatest programming power ever made available in a personal calculator—with more than three times the power of the classic HP-65.

Takes programs up to 224 steps. Each function of one, two or three keystrokes is merged, so each function requires only one step of program memory. Result: greatly increased program capacity.

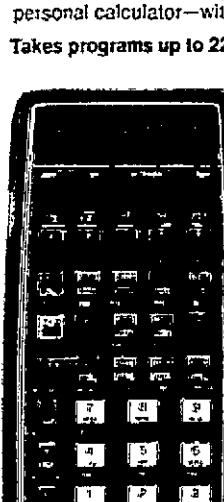

26 storage registers to provide the memory you need.

Convenient preprogrammed functions include trig, exponentials, logs, statistics, angular conversions.

Powerful programming features including 3 levels of subroutines; 10 user-definable keys; 10 conditional/decision functions; 4 flags; 3 types of addressing—direct to labels, relative and indirect.

Many prerecorded programs ready on magnetic cards in many disciplines. You have valuable time because no research, programming, debugging or documenting is needed.

Only $450 complete with 300-page Owner's Handbook, Quick Reference Guide, battery pack, recharging unit, soft carrying case, Standard Program Pac including 15 representative program cards, 1 head cleaning card, and 24 blank program cards. Come try the powerful new HP-67 today.

Mel Tillis Top Country Music Entertainer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Mel Tillis was named entertainer of the year at the nationally televised 10th annual Country Music Association awards show Monday night.

He won the CMA's top award over Waylon Jennings, Dolly Parton, Ronnie Milsap and Willie Nelson, who won or shared three other awards.

Miss Parton and Milsap were named top vocalists by the CMA.

Miss Parton was chosen top woman vocalist over Crystal Gayle, Emmylou Harris, Barbara Mandrell and Tammy Wynette.

Milsap edged out Jennings, Nelson, Conway Twitty and Don Williams for top male vocalist honors.

Nelson and Jennings were selected vocal duo of the year, but Jennings was not at the Grand Ole Opry House to pick up his award.

The two singers won the vocal duo award over Bill Anderson and Mary Lou Turner; George Jones and Tammy Wynette; Conway Twitty and Loretta Lynn, and Tillis and Sherry Bryce.

"Rhinestone Cowboy," written by Larry Weiss and recorded by Glen Campbell, was chosen song of the year.

"Good Hearted Woman," by Jennings and Nelson was named single of the year and "Wanted — The Outlaws," by Jennings, Jessi Colter, Tompall Glaser and Nelson was named album of the year.

Roy Clark and Buck Trent won the instrumental group of

Mel Tillis

The Statler Brothers were named vocal group of the year.

Last week, Jennings tried unsuccessfully to withdraw from the competition for personal reasons. Association officials said it was too late because voting had been completed.

This was the third straight year he was involved in a controversy in connection with the awards show.

Last year he said the only reason he attended the show was because his wife, Jessi Colter, was a finalist for top female vocalist.

In 1974 he refused to perform on the show after officials cut his allotted time on stage.

Nelson, along with Jennings, has become the leader in the so-called "progressive" wing of country music. His hits during the past year include "Remember Me," and "If You've Got The Money, Honey, I've Got The Time." His version of "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain," recorded a year ago, is a country classic.

Milsap, a former rock singer who turned to country three years ago, has won the association's less prestigious awards for the past two years. In 1974 he was voted top male singer and last year his "Legend in My Time" was chosen best album.

Tillis is probably best known to casual country music fans as the performer who stutters when he talks but not when he sings.

L.A. Police Nab Suspect By The Sea

Los Angeles (AP) — Police chasing a robbery suspect in Los Angeles couldn't have been too worried they'd get their man because when you're in California you can only drive so far west before you run into the sea. And that's almost what happened to James Nelson. Police said the man tried to elude them, but he made the decision to head west toward the Pacific Ocean. Fifteen miles later his car smashed through an iron guard rail and got caught in the sand just a few feet from the water. He was apprehended without further incident and booked for investigation of armed robbery.

Ex-Newsman Dies

Tokyo (AP) — Kyoshi Iwamoto, former managing director of Kyodo news service, is dead at 72. He died of a heart attack while attending a luncheon meeting at a Tokyo hotel.

Deal With Your Fears, Look At Future Hopes

By JOANNE FARRIS

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Yes, that is the Golden Rule, more often honored in the breach than the observance, perhaps, and yet a useful precept.

How can we apply it particularly to those of us in middle-age? How can it be a guide to action with respect to aging in general?

Applying the Golden Rule to middle-age and aging demands of us thought and self-examination. Questions arise, which each of us must answer for himself.

How do I feel about aging? The aging of my contemporaries? The aging of those already old?

What are my hopes and fears about aging?

Once we have faced and answered these questions for ourselves, applications of the Golden Rule then become self-evident.

Some of the frequently-voiced fears of aging are: fear of death, fear of becoming senile, fear of being ignored, neglected, shunted to the sidelines, disregarded.

In the context of those kinds of fears, "Doing unto others as we would have others do unto us" can become: listening to a terminally-ill person, listening with an ear for what the person is saying and perhaps for what he or she wants to say but cannot; offering understanding and patience to an old friend whose senses may have lost some of their keen edge but who is far from senile, though perhaps afraid of seeming so; reaching out to older people you know who crave attention and genuine interest in their doings, who, in fact, too often have little to do because they are ignored.

"All right," you retort to these ideas, "let's have some examples." Take an old neighbor shopping with you once a week. Let an older person share with you a skill he or she has mastered which you'd like to learn. Trade books with an old friend of similar tastes to your own; then have a book dialogue from time to time. Once you begin to think of applications of the Golden Rule, you'll find more than you can put into action.

Having dealt with some of your fears, look hard at your hopes for the later years of your life.

We all hope for good mental and physical health and a continuity to the activities of our lives that good health will make possible.

Most of us hope that when we're old every now and then we'll encounter someone whose life we touched gently long before; we want to be remembered.

What better use for the Golden Rule than this: go to visit someone who has been an influence for good in your life? Tell that person what your feelings about him or her are. Thank the person for what you remember he or she did that affected your life.

You can't, you'd be embarrassed, you're afraid you or they might cry. Okay.

Then sit down and write the person a letter. Take a second to think how you'd feel to receive such a letter; you'll find the right words. Whenever you write a letter that comes from your heart it rings true. The recipient will understand. He or she will be grateful that you have dared to open yourself up to express your feelings.

Those of you who have been reading Life Begins at Forty regularly will recognize the above as further applications of my favorite theory about "neighboring." It works.

Mexican Riviera — "They call me Jaime Derecho," he said handing me his card: "Jim Wright" (Jaime is "James"). "Derecho is 'right'."

"Get it?" he said. "I got you,"

I said.

Jaime Derecho is an American.

A general assistant, publicity man, raconteur, maker of jokes for the sparkling new Hotel La Palapa, in Acapulco.

It is the tallest building in the city," said Jaime. "There are no rooms. Everything is in suites. Either a three-bedroom suite or a one-bedroom suite."

La Palapas are a new chain in Mexico. One in Acapulco. One in Mazatlan. One in Cancun, the new Yucatan resort on the Caribbean coast.

La Palapa is chrome-and-glass. It has a discotheque of stained glass and the acoustics are arranged.

"If you sit here in front, it is loud," said Jaime.

"If you sit in the second section, the sound is softer. In the third section, softer still. Even so it is all one room. No dividers."

We took an evening look at the discotheque. Nouvelle they call it. Acapulco is full of discotheques. Whiskey-a-Go-Go. Tequila-a-Go-Go. No doubt a dozen of them.

This is newest and most popular.

We sat in the third section — keep the music soft, says I.

As the music began, six monks in black robes, hooded, shuffling in sandals, carried in a coffin. The music blared on as they set it on a table surrounded by candles.

The monks then threw back their hoods and revealed faces you wouldn't want to meet in a Creatures Features movie. They were masks of course. But masks of monsters. Deformed monstrous heads.

Their faces leered. Great warts grew from their chins.

They began a shuffling dance around the Coffin. (The Funky Chicken? I'm not sure that's still in but it looked funky and it looked chicken.)

Once in awhile, the coffin opened. Some horrid creature from the Black Lagoon tried to get out.

The monks then seized him and crammed him back in.

Jaime assured me: "All this and the best music in all Mexico!"

There's a sandy beach — though I don't have confidence in Acapulco Bay. A kind of harem swimming pool. Under bridges and waterfalls.

I asked Jaime how much they got for this life of Aladdin. He said the suites were $88 (U.S. naturally) with two meals in the winter season. "In the summer, no meals, $36."

I asked for a rate sheet at the desk. But even Aladdin's Palace wouldn't have had a rate sheet if the genie of the lamp had been Mexican.

They typed one for me which I couldn't possibly understand. But it had a poetic ending.

It keep the music soft, says I.

Osborne Has More Than Passing Interest In NU Runners

Nebraska's passing game against Colorado wasn't up to Cornhusker standards, in Coach Tom Osborne's opinion, but the running game came through and helped produce a 24-12 victory.

"If the passing game had been average or better we'd have had 420 to 450 yards in total offense," Osborne told the Extra Point Club at the weekly luncheon Monday at the Elks Club. The actual total was 349 yards.

"We initiated 25 passes (got only 20 away) and that would usually be good for 150 to 200 yards for us," he added. "It was the first time we hadn't completed 50 per cent or better (9 of 20). We got sacked three times and gained only 96 yards passing."

Osborne used this example to once again explain why the Huskers usually try to establish the running game. He noted that fans are always asking why don't the Huskers forget about trying to run the football and just throw the ball more.

"As you well know, here in Nebraska winning five or six games a year isn't enough," he said. "If you have a good running game it's almost always going to be there. But passing relies so much on individual skills and touch."

He compared passing with golf. "You go out to play the day after you've shot a 72 and you shoot a 85 and you don't know why," he said.

Ferragamo One Of Best

"You can have the greatest passer in the world and we've got one of the better ones around (Vince Ferragamo), but he's not always going to be the greatest guy," Osborne said. "Sometimes receivers aren't going to catch them all. You may throw deep five times in a game and three of the five times have a guy open. The receiver might drop the ball or the pass is overthrown by a foot. That's a difference of 150 yards in a game."

"There's so much inconsistency and uncertainty in the passing game, so you've got to have a running game. I think we surprised Colorado in that regard. We had other things we could do than pass and as a result we were able to win."

Colorado coach Bill Mallory had said there were two things the Buffaloes had to do and if they did they'd win — be close at the half and shut down the NU passing game. They did both, but still lost.

Nebraska controlled the football for 82 plays, 62 of them rushes, and gained 253 yards rushing. That's not a pedestrian running game by any means. In fact, that was Nebraska's top rushing total of the season, better by five yards than the Huskers picked up against Indiana.

A good argument Osborne could use for the value of a rushing game would be the 6-6 tie at Louisiana State. In that one, the Huskers gained only 131 yards in 50 rushes.

Or, the LSU game a year ago (138 yards in a 10-7 victory) or the Oklahoma game in Norman last season (70 yards) or the loss to Missouri here two years ago (101 yards).

K-State Big Test For NU

Osborne said Kansas State would provide as big a test as the Huskers have had this year, but said if the Huskers play well they'll come out of the game okay.

"Kansas State last year played the best defensive football game against us all season," he said. "And that includes our losses to Oklahoma and Arizona State. They held us to 12 points and they did it without much help from their offensive team like Oklahoma and Arizona State got."

Osborne said he didn't think the margin will be very big, which should be good advice to those who like to place a wager. "I know some of you are disposed to making a bet," he said. "Although I don't condone gambling, you can take this from me. Saturday will not be a big margin football game."

"Our players understand that. I'm sure the majority of our fans don't, though, because of what they read and what the oddsmakers say. Nothing is automatic in athletics. You have to play and play well to win any game in the Big Eight."

The Husker coach said Nebraska is potentially a very good football team. "But we haven't put it together yet. We're going to have to do it quick — go from a good team to a great team in a hurry."

He said there still are a few little things that need to be ironed out if the Huskers are to reach their potential.

time for this."

He told the Cincinnati Enquirer that he was unhappy with his contract. "I've been unhappy with it for a long time."

Rose said his lawyer, Reuben Katz, has had one contract discussion with the Reds.

"The whole thing is wrong," he said about asking for $500,000 over two years.

When pressed about the possibility of a trade, Rose said: "Philadelphia is the only other team I'd like to play for. I could play left field there."

A source close to Rose who asked not to be identified told

The Associated Press: "Pete is tired of hearing that he is just a singles hitter. He feels he is as big a draw on the club as Bench and Morgan, but the Reds' officials tell him they can't pay him the same salary."

The Reds have been one of baseball's top-drawing clubs the last four years and led the majors in attendance this season with a club-record 2.7-million fans.

A Reds spokesman labeled the Rose trade report as "strictly rumor at this point. We're confident an agreement can be worked out."

Rose has hit .300 or better 10 of the last 11 seasons and has had seven 200-hit seasons in his 14-year career, all with the Reds. The Cincinnati native also is the National League's leading active hitter with more than 2,700 career hits.

Greg Luzinski, the Philadelphia left fielder most likely to be affected by such a deal, said he would welcome it.

were just 42-32 against lefties while posting an imposing 55-30 record against right-handers.

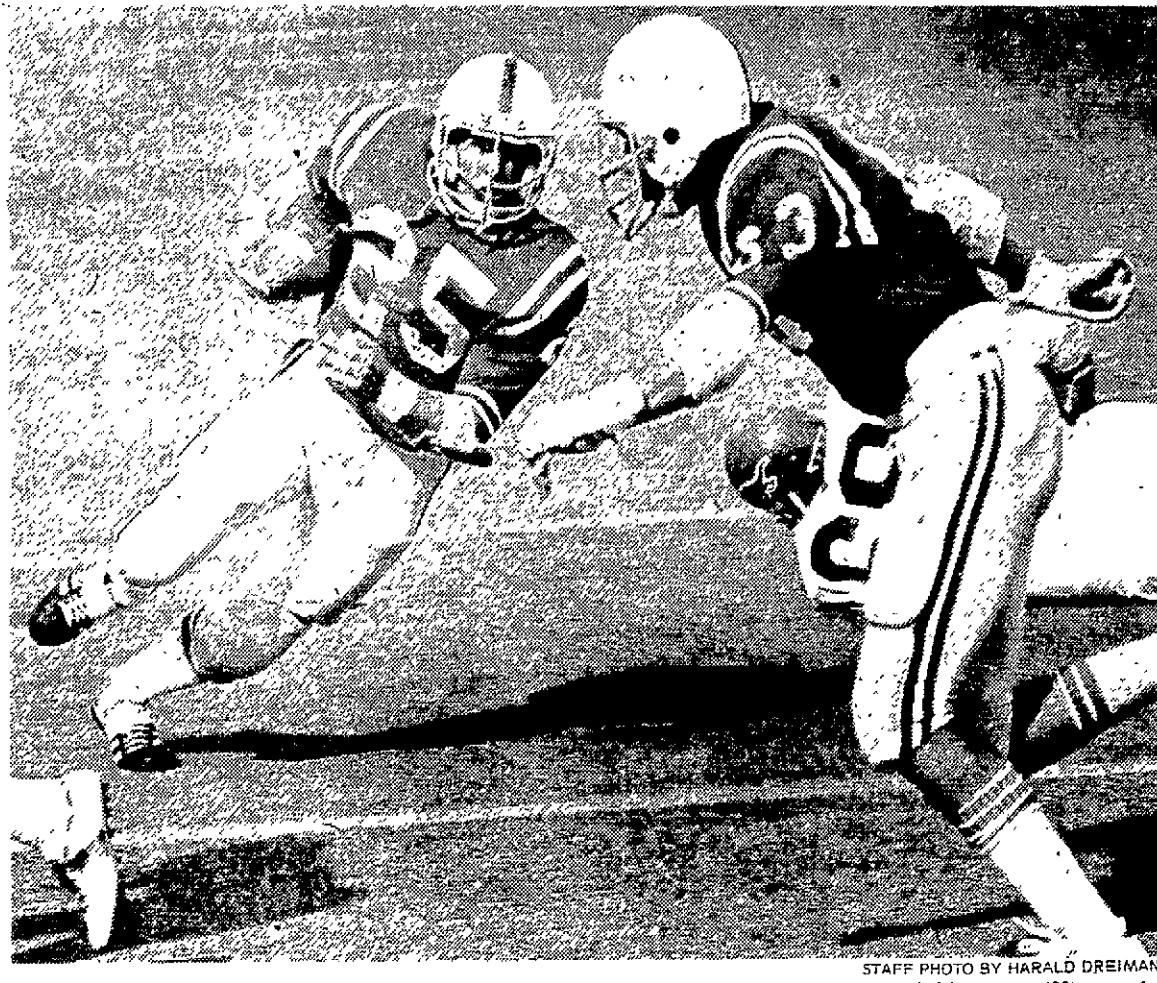

Hassler was especially effective against New York in his two appearances against them. He allowed only one earned run in 17 2-3 innings for a nifty 0.51 earned run average.

"They've always been a team I've wanted to beat," said Hassler. "I grew up in California and the Dodgers and the Giants were my teams. The Yankees always seem like a money team. They've gone out and bought anybody they wanted and it didn't seem fair."

Hassler has some added incentive to want to pitch well in Tuesday night's game. He figures he owes the Royals something for saving his career. When Kansas City obtained him on waivers from California in early July, he was at the low ebb of his career, having lost 17 straight games.

Hassler says he plans to stick with the same lineup against Ellis as he used against right-handers. Hunter and Ed Figueroa in the first two games of the series. Ellis, a 17-game winner this season, beat the Royals in his only start against them this year, allowing just one run in 10 innings.

Yankees' Manager Billy Martin will switch back to his right-handed lineup — the one he used against Gura in the opener. That means Lou Piniella will be the designated hitter and bat fourth with Elliott Maddox in right field.

Drawing the starting assignment for Monday was also a boost to Taylor, the holder of Omaha's Metro Conference single game rushing record of 346 yards.

"When coach Ingles told me I was going to get the starting nod," Taylor said. "It psyches me up. After the Kansas State game, I knew I had to put out and work hard to get there."

"Now, we try to help each other out all we can," Wurth added. "There isn't a lot you can do, but you do whatever you can for each other. Sometime, playing three I-backs is bad for morale, but it's also a good thing because it makes you work harder."

Wurth, like the entire freshman team, is looking forward to what Ingles considers the meat of the schedule, the Missouri game.

"I know we've played Kansas State, but Missouri is a little more classy team," Wurth said.

"We're looking forward to that."

Defensively, Ingles was pleased with the first shutout.

"We had a better defensive effort today than Kansas State," Ingles said. "They weren't able to score, and that's what we're looking for. I thought our pass rush and containment was much better."

With the win, the Huskers moved to 2-0 while UNO dropped to 0-3 with losses to Iowa State's JVs and South Dakota University's JVs.

Michigan Still Ranked No. 1 In AP Football Poll

By The Associated Press

Michigan maintained a comfortable lead Monday in the Associated Press college football poll while Nebraska inched back toward its preseason No. 1 ranking and Oklahoma dropped to sixth in its bid to become the first team ever to win three consecutive national championships.

Following a 42-10 rout of Michigan State, the Michigan Wolverines received three votes for No. 1 and Georgia two.

But Oklahoma dropped from third to sixth by virtue of a 6-6 tie with Texas—the deadlock lifted Texas from 16th to 13th while the Nebraska Cornhuskers climbed from sixth to third with 848 points following a 24-12 victory over Colorado.

UCLA, a 38-20 winner over Stanford, rose from fifth to fourth, replacing previously undefeated Georgia, which lost to Mississippi 21-17 and slipped to 11th.

Behind UCLA came fifth-place Maryland, up from seventh last week, with 860 points after a 16-6 decision over North Carolina State. The Terrapins were followed by Oklahoma with 811 points and Missouri, No. 9 last week, with 465 for a 28-21 triumph over Kansas State.

The other three first-place votes went to Pittsburgh, which polled 1,057 points for a 27-6 triumph over Louisville. Those voters who liked Pitt over Michigan rated the Wolverines No. 2.

A week ago, Michigan led Pitt 1,182-992 and received 52 first-place votes to three for the Panthers. In that poll, Oklahoma received three votes for No. 1 and Georgia two.

Morning Briefing

Gabriel Ready To Play

Roman Gabriel Passes Physical

Veteran quarterback Roman Gabriel appears ready to get back into action with the Philadelphia Eagles, the NFL club said Monday.

Gabriel underwent a fifth operation on his injured right knee earlier this year and has not played this season.

"Gabe was in town Monday and the team doctors checked him out," a team spokesman said. "He passed his physical and should be able to play."

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, trying to shake up the NFL's worst offense, moved another step closer to signing former Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Hanratty Monday and accepted the resignation of offensive coordinator John Rauch. Rauch, 48, is a former head coach for the Oakland Raiders and Buffalo Bills.

Other Football

Quarterback Terry Hanratty, cut by the Pittsburgh Steelers during pre-season, apparently reached agreement on a contract with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Monday, but did not officially sign with the expansion club.

Washington Redskins' coach George Allen said Monday he is leaning toward starting backup quarterback Joe Theismann again next Sunday against the Detroit Lions. Theismann completed 20 of 37 passes in a 33-30 loss to Kansas City.

Saturday's Southeastern Conference clash between Alabama and Tennessee in Knoxville, Tenn., will be televised nationally by ABC, a network spokesman announced Monday. The telecast will begin at 2:30 p.m., CDT, with kickoff scheduled for 2:55 p.m.

Basketball

Willie Hodge, a 6-foot, 9 forward from Duke taken by the Kansas City Kings in the fifth round of this year's draft was placed on waivers Monday. The Kings' squad is now down to 13.

Tom Kozelko, a backup to center West Ursel for the past three seasons, has been placed on waivers by the Washington Bullets, reducing the team's roster to 13 players.

The Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association placed their third-round draft choice, guard Mike Dabney of Rutgers, on waivers Monday. The Lakers are still three over the roster limit of 12.

Boxing

Security will be tight Tuesday for the opening of the murder trial of former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, who spent nine years in prison trying to prove he is innocent. Hudson County, N.J., sheriff's officers expect a large audience for the trial and plan to frisk spectators and use metal detectors.

The top heavyweight boxers from the United States and the Soviet Union will square off again this year, the Amateur Athletic Union announced Monday at its annual convention at Phoenix, Ariz. Dates are Nov. 27 in Las Vegas and Dec. 3 in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Auto Racing

Veteran racing driver Jacky Ickx, injured in a crackup during Sunday's United States Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y., was scheduled to fly Tuesday to his native Belgium. Ickx, 31, suffered a compound fracture of his right ankle and minor burns when his Formula 1 Engin, 14, lost a wheel and crashed into a guard rail.

Joe Ruttman of Westland, Mich., finished first in the 150-mile National Late-Model Championship Stock Car Race Monday at Trenton, N.J., but was dropped to last place when his fuel cell was found to be 1.5 gallons over allowed capacity.

Other Sports

Gilles Marotte, 31, placed on waivers by the New York Rangers, has been acquired by the St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League, it was announced Monday. He is a defenseman.

Magistrates inflicted severe penalties on several soccer fans for violence which marred a recent match between First Division English League club Aston Villa of Birmingham and the Scottish Glasgow Rangers. One man was jailed for six months and five others were sentenced to detention. Fines totaled over $5,100 for others involved.

Sadaharu Oh of the Yomiuri Giants became the second man to surpass Babe Ruth's career total of 714 home runs Monday when he connected in the eighth inning of a 9-3 victory over the Hanshin Tigers. Oh joined Hank Aaron as the only men to surpass Ruth's mark. Aaron retired this year, finishing his career with 755 home runs.

Australian Evonne Goolagong and Sweden's Bjorn Borg advanced to the singles semifinals of the World Invitational Tennis Classic at Hilton Head Monday. Borg overcame Australian Rod Laver, defending Classic champion, 6-3, 7-5.

Dibbs Wins First Round

MADRID (AP) — Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., scored an opening round 6-0, 6-0 victory over Britain's Roger Taylor Monday in a $75,000 tennis tournament counting for the Grand Prix series.

Other results included: Jose Higueras of Spain over Steve Turner of the United States 4-6, 6-4, 6-4; Britain's Buster Mottram over Jiri Hrebek of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 6-2; Tom Okker of The Netherlands over Spain's Salvador Cabezas 6-3, 6-3; Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia over Juan Muntanola of Spain 6-3, 6-3.

Oklahoma Spy Charges Spies Big 8 Briefing

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Oklahoma State coach Jim Stanley believes Oklahoma may have planted a spy in the Cowboy camp before last year's Sooner-Cowboy game.

"It's the most unethical thing a coach can do," Stanley said as the controversy continued to swirl over Texas coach Darrell Royal's charges that Oklahoma had obtained information from a spy before last Saturday's Sooner-Longhorn clash in Dallas.

"They tell me a guy posed as a painter painting the ladies restroom and watched our practices all week last year before the OU game," Stanley said Monday via the Big Eight coaches telephone hookup from conference headquarters.

"This is all heresy," Stanley added. "But information came from the Texas staff to me that there was a spy."

Royal charged that a man identified as Lonnie Williams had relayed information to Larry Lacewell, Oklahoma's defensive coordinator.

Stanley also indicated that he had reason to believe that Arkansas had spied on his practices this year.

But Barry Switzer of Oklahoma and Frank Broyles of Arkansas flatly denied the accusation.

"Do they practice in the ladies restroom?" Switzer laughed Monday night from his office. "I needed this. I've been watching films of Nolan Cromwell and Laverne Smith and I needed a laugh."

Broyles, reached at his office, said Arkansas has never spied directly or indirectly.

"I don't want any information gathered unethically," he said. "If it were offered, I'd turn it down."

Denials from both Lacewell and Switzer prompted Royal to offer to resign from coaching if the Sooners would take and pass a lie detector test on the matter.

"If that guy's done what Darrell claims he's a world traveler," Switzer said Monday.

"I don't need anybody to tell me what Texas is

Pro Quarterback: Dangerous Position

By The Associated Press

Steve Bartkowski of Atlanta and Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh were the most serious casualties of a wild weekend which saw seven starting quarterbacks knocked out of action around the National Football League.

Bartkowski, the NFL's rookie of the year last season, underwent knee surgery Monday to repair ligaments damaged when he was tackled by Andy Dorris of New Orleans just before halftime of the Falcons' 300 loss to the Saints Sunday.

"He will be out at least two months and probably the rest of the season," said Falcons Coach Marion Campbell, only hours before learning that he had been fired and that General Manager Pat Peppel will be assuming the coaching duties for the remainder of the season.

Peppel will try to salvage something out of 1976 behind Kim McQuilken, a third-year man from Lehigh with only modest professional experience.

But replacing a starting quarterback involves more than just filling the position. Psychological and emotional factors enter into it as well.

"Bartkowski is their leader," noted New Orleans Coach Hank Stram. "They rally around him greatly."

Whether the Falcons, 14, can rally around McQuilken remains to be seen.

Bradshaw, field general of the two-time Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers who have also stumbled to a 1-4 start, was hospitalized with neck and back injuries after being barreled and slammed to the ground by Cleveland defensive end Joe Jones in the Browns' 18-16 upset.

Namath, Morton, Griese and Boryla should all be ready to return to the NFL wars next weekend.

Bradshaw will be out two or three weeks, leaving the struggling Steelers with just one passer, rookie Mike Krueck. "Krueck is going to start next week unless Terry (Bradshaw) has a miracle," Steelers Coach Chuck Noll said.

The other starting quarterback in that game, Cleveland's Brian Sipe, also did not survive in one piece. He suffered a concussion late in the first half and it was rookie David Mays, a dentistry graduate whose only pro experience was in the World Football League, who guided the Browns to their upset.

The Browns' No. 1 quarterback, Mike Phipps, is still out because of a shoulder separation suffered in the first game of the season.

Who will start for the Browns next week?

"We think Sipe will be all right," Coach Forrest Gregg said, "but let me enjoy this one for a while."

Namath played the first two periods but watched the second half from the sidelines as the Jets, with rookie Richard Todd at the helm, edged Buffalo 17-14 for their first victory of the season. Namath was hurt when he was tackled by Mike Kadish in the first period. The leg began to tighten up during the second quarter.

Namath, Morton, Griese and Boryla should all be ready to return to the NFL wars next weekend.

Plunkett Helps 49ers Pass LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett threw for two touchdowns while the San Francisco defense threw Los Angeles passer James Harris for losses 10 times Monday night as the 49ers upset the previously undefeated Rams 16-0 in a National Football League game.

Winning their fourth game against one loss, the revitalized 49ers took over first place in the National Conference West by winning this nationally televised game before a crowd of 80,532 at Memorial Coliseum.

The shutout was the first the Rams have suffered in a regular season NFL game at the Coliseum since the team moved here from Cleveland in 1946.

Neither team scored in the first half, with the Rams committing four holding penalties and being charged with having an illegal man downfield on punts four other times.

The 49ers took the second half kickoff and promptly zipped 73 yards in four plays, the touchdown coming on a 36-yard pass from Plunkett to Willie McGee. Steve Mike-Mayer kicked the conversion.

Then the 49ers started to unload on Harris, who last week passed for 436 yards in a 31-28 victory over Miami.

Back to pass, Harris was hit by Tommy Hart, fumbled and defensive tackle Cleveland Elam recovered for the 49ers at the Los Angeles five. On third down at the six, Plunkett was hit, but still found Tom Mitchell two yards into the end zone for the touchdown. A high pass from center cost the conversion.

Hart hit Harris again on the first play after the ensuing kickoff, the ball popped into the air and defensive tackle Jimmy Webb grabbed it at the 14. After reaching the one, and on fourth down, Coach Monte Clark of the 49ers elected to go for the field goal and MikeMayer booted an 18-yarder.

Pepper Replaces Campbell

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons fired head coach Marion Campbell Monday, a few hours after learning that starting quarterback Steve Bartkowski was lost for the remainder of the season, and turned the task of reviving the faltering NFL team over to General Manager Pat Pepper.

Pepper, who has never coached in the pro ranks and did his last on-the-field coaching as an assistant at Wake Forest 14 years ago, made it clear that he was only filling in for the remaining nine games of the season.

"I will wear the hats of head coach and general manager for the balance of the season," Pepper said. "At the conclusion of the schedule, I expect to return to the fulltime role of general manager with the responsibility at that point of assisting the new 1977 coaching staff in building the Falcons' fortunes on the football field."

The 54-year-old Pepper, who previously worked in the front offices of the Green Bay Packers and the Miami Dolphins before joining the Falcons 20 months ago, takes over a team which sank to a 1-4 record after Sunday's 30-0 loss at New Orleans, and lost its No. 1 quarterback in the process.

Bartkowski injured his right knee late in the second period and was operated on Monday morning to tighten a ligament. Campbell, unaware at that time that he would be fired before the day was out, sadly announced "he's definitely out for the season."

Pepper said he was counting on Bill Walsh, Campbell's offensive line coach, to be his right hand man. "I've asked Bill Walsh to stay with us as assistant head coach as well as handle the offensive line," he said.

The cattle generally were content to pick their way nonchalantly through the course and back to their pens.

Market Falls Sharply To Nine-Month Low

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned in another gloomy showing Monday, falling sharply to a nine-month low in a continuation of the slide that began two weeks ago.

The latest decline came as an unhappy surprise to many Wall Streeters, who had been looking for a relatively placid session with many banks and other investing institutions closed for Columbus Day.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 11.56 to 940.82, its lowest close since it finished at 929.63 last Jan. 16.

In the last 10 sessions the average has plunged 72.31 points, erasing a roughly estimated $60 billion to $70 billion from the market value of all stocks traded.

Losers overwhelmed gainers by about a 5-1 margin among NYSE issues.

Big Board volume totalled 14.82 million shares, against 16.74 million on Friday as the Dow was posting a 12.71 loss.

The decline of the last two weeks has been the market's biggest sustained setback since it fell 87 points, as measured by the Dow, in a seven-week period in the summer of 1975.

Brokers blame the recent weakness on concern over evidence of sluggishness in the economy as well as uncertainty over the impending presidential election and the significance of its outcome for the business climate in the next four years.

Analysts cited no major developments in Monday's economic news to add to those depressants, but they said the market did suffer from some technical influences stemming from the recent decline in stocks.

In particular they mentioned margin calls and stop-loss orders. Margin calls occur when a broker tells a customer investing on credit to put up additional cash on a stock that is dropping.

Bankruptcies In Nebraska Decline 22%

Omaha (AP) — Bankruptcies in Nebraska declined 22% during the first nine months of 1976, compared to the same period last year, according to figures compiled by the Credit Bureau of Greater Omaha, Inc.

There were 1,508 bankruptcy petitions filed this year, down from 1,935 last year. Petitions in Nebraska are filed in U.S. District Courts in Omaha and Lincoln.

About 90% of bankruptcy filings are from individuals and the remainder from businesses, said George Wruck, Credit Bureau president.

Bankruptcy filings during the third quarter totaled 483, down 6% from 513 the previous year.

The decline in bankruptcy filings began during the third quarter of 1975, following two years of substantial increases, Wruck said.

He said he believes a major factor in the drop is the greater care taken by businesses in extending credit.

Police Check Into Robbery

Police are questioning several people in connection with an armed robbery at a service station at 2101 Holdrege Friday night. Asst. Police Chief Roger LaPage said Monday.

An attendant told police that two men took a billfold from him about 8 p.m. Friday. About $300 was taken, LaPage said. The two men were described as a white male and a black male. One of the men was carrying a handgun, the attendant said.

Regents To Consider Football Ticket Hike

Big Red football fans may be forking over another $4 next year for season football tickets if the University of Nebraska Board of Regents approves the price hike this Friday.

The blame for the price increase — an extra $1 surcharge on the four non-conference games — is being placed squarely on the backs of women athletes and inflation.

Explanatory information given to the regents states that the Athletic Department has had increasing problems of rising costs from inflation and new programs, principally Women's Intercollegiate athletics."

If Regents give approval, the exact price of tickets would not be settled until after the Big 8 Conference determines the 1977 conference ticket prices, Tommeraasen said.

UNL is one of the few schools which doesn't meet athletic expenses with student fees or tax dollars, explained Miles Tommeraasen, vice chancellor for budgeting and finance.

The proposal would permit a $1 surcharge for the 1977 games with Washington State, Alabama, Baylor and Indiana.

Munn Suggested For UNL Post
Martin B. Munn of Tacoma, Wash., will be recommended to the Board of Regents Friday for appointment as affirmative action officer at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. A native of Des Moines, Munn, 40, is currently assistant to the president of Pacific Lutheran University.

NU Faculty Income Went Unreported—Candidate

Hastings (AP) — District Five regent candidate Mrs. Fred Seaton Monday night told the Hastings National Organization of Women that she has received reports that some University of Nebraska faculty members are getting outside income and not reporting it as required by law.

Mrs. Seaton also said NU regents have made a secret agreement with medical center instructors on disclosure of outside professional income. She gave no details.

University by-laws require that no instructor shall engage in outside employment that will interfere with their duties or represent a conflict of interest.

"My new gas range is a lot like my old one. It saves time, saves money, and conserves energy."

What more could I ask for?"

Gas does a super job in the kitchen. And today's new gas ranges offer many convenient and time-saving features.

But there's an even better reason why you should consider replacing your old gas range with a new one. When it comes time...

The cost of all forms of energy is increasing. Gas, electricity, coal, fuel oil—they're all affected. Yet, gas remains one of the most economical fuels. So, a gas range helps keep your utility bills as low as possible.

And, compared to an electric range, a gas range is the more efficient user of our natural resources.

Gas comes into your home with almost all of its original energy intact. Electricity, on the other hand, must be generated, usually by burning coal or oil. And then it suffers a loss of power in transmission.

The point is, let each form of energy do the job it does best. And for economy and conservation, gas is best for cooking your food.

When it comes time to replace your old gas range, replace it with a new gas range.

INTENSE CONCENTRATION ... volunteers know even practice fire can be dangerous.

Firemen Practice Too

Firefighter Jim Mitera of the Lincoln Fire Department spends his spare time setting fires — for other firemen to put out.

Mitera works for the Nebraska Department of Education's State Fire Service as an area instructor to volunteer firefighters.

A full-time Lincoln fireman, he spends many extra hours each week instructing rural firemen in firefighting skills.

Whenever possible the instructors burn down an abandoned house so trainees can experience the real thing.

On a recent Sunday afternoon, Mitera and Leroy Brouleite, another instructor who is a full-time paid fireman in York, burned a house in Staplehurst, a few miles north of Seward.

Before setting the fire, Mitera told the 20 members of the Staplehurst Volunteer Fire Department:

"This will be a real fire, with real fire danger. The nails are just as pointed, the glass is just as sharp, the chimneys fall just as hard as in any fire."

Mitera took this reporter, masquerading as a fireman in insulated coat, boots and helmet, inside the house while he set the fire. Bales of hay and an overstuffed chair were piled in the parlor of the dingy old house — a structure on its way to becoming an eyesore in the neat village of Staplehurst.

Mitera threw diesel fuel on the pile. Then he struck a match to a broom and set the pile ablaze.

"Sit down," he commanded, as I watched the flames leap up. Within about a minute flames filled the parlor and were lapping at the ceiling of the living room, where I sat huddled against a wall.

"Stand up and feel how hot it is," he said. As I rose I could feel the temperature climb. I quickly returned to the floor.

Dark smoke began to fill the upper part of the room. It filtered down and began to sting my eyes. For an instant it seemed like the whole living room ceiling was ablaze.

I crawled out the open door to coolness and clean air.

Mitera followed. "That was a flashover," he explained. The ceiling paper had literally exploded, because of the terrific heat.

He told about the layers of atmosphere inside a burning building: the upper layers of a room, where most of the smoke and poisonous gases are, will get to 1,400 degrees when a fire is going good. At the same time, the lower layer, a foot or a few inches off the floor, will remain as cool as 110 to 120 degrees.

Outside air enters the building through this lower layer to feed oxygen to the fire. Whenever fire is visible, there must be a source of air and a heat differential, Mitera explained.

Most people who die in burning houses die from smoke inhalation and heat, not from actually being burned, Mitera said. A person who panics and runs bolt upright through his smoky, overheated house has a much poorer chance of surviving than somebody who crawls to safety through the lower layer which is probably breathable and relatively cool.

Mitera had the men enter the house in teams of two. After a pair of firemen doused the flames, he applied more diesel fuel to get them going again for the next two.

After a few teams had been inside, the roof began to smoke, then a great hole appeared where fire was eating up the attic. But Mitera continued sending in teams.

"Don't be afraid of this," he told them. "This is the finest you could ever have. Show me a building you can't get in and I'll show you a building that will burn down anyway."

It is Mitera's conviction that a fireman can't stop a fire unless he can get inside the building to fight it. Also, someone might be trapped in the building, and there's no way to perform a rescue without going inside.

As the building continued to burn, Mitera told his students that they were experiencing the whole range of structural fire. The roof collapsed, then the chimneys, and finally the walls until only a fiery skeleton remained.

By keeping the fire under control, they were able to "play with it" for about four hours. Uncontrolled, the building might have burned down in less than an hour.

Both Mitera and Brouleite emphasized the importance of teamwork in firefighting. While the men inside the building direct water onto the fire, others must help carry the hoses, man the pumping trucks and watch all sides of the building to keep the fire contained.

No one could fight a sizable fire singlehandedly.

The more hands available, the better.

Volunteer fire departments such as Staplehurst's have a strong esprit de corps. They have to, since the members all hold full-time jobs in the community yet have to be prepared to go to the scene of an emergency whenever needed.

Mitera said 90% of Nebraska is served by volunteer firemen.

Only eight of the 20 Staplehurst volunteers had been inside a burning structure before.

You can spend months reading books, Mitera believes, but can never really learn how to handle a fire until you've experienced the real thing.

Peace Leaders To Return To Scene

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two women leaders of an Irish peace movement, who were punched and kicked by a Roman Catholic mob that threatened their lives, said Monday they would return soon to the scene of the attack to "explain what we are about."

Meanwhile two more persons, a woman and a young girl, died in Northern Ireland's sectarian warfare, bringing the toll to at least 1,535 in seven years of Catholic-Protestant violence in Northern Ireland.

Betty Williams, 32, and Mairead Corrigan, 23, said they were determined to go back within a few days to the Turf Lodge area of west Belfast where a mob of some 600 attacked them Sunday and then destroyed their cars when they took refuge in a Roman Catholic church. The attack came when they tried to address a meeting of the Turf Lodge Tenants Association called to protest the death earlier in the day of a 13-year-old boy hit in the head by a British soldier's plastic bullet.

The two women are widely known as organizers of a peace movement that in the past seven weeks has gained considerable support. Both are Catholics, but their movement is unpopular in the Turf Lodge area where residents have charged the women are backed by the British government. The two deny the charge.

Mrs. Williams said she and Miss Corrigan went to the meeting of the tenants' association, called to protest British army actions in the area "because we have said we condemn all sorts of violence, including violence by the British army."

She added, "I am not better about what happened because I can understand why these men took the gun. I do not want any army on our streets. ... I have seen the British army commit atrocities and these people in Turf Lodge have been under terrible pressure in the last three weeks to prevent any IRA action against them."

In reporting one of the new deaths, police said a gunman shot dead a 48-year-old woman Monday as she stood chatting on her doorstep in a predominantly Protestant part of north Belfast. A spokesman said a hostile crowd threatened police when they went to the scene.

No reason was given for the attack and the dead woman's religion was not revealed.

Belfast hospital authorities reported Monday's second death, that of a 15-year-old girl who succumbed to shooting wounds suffered Sept. 4 when two armed youths attacked a north Belfast shop. Again no religion was given.

On a trip to the United States last week Mrs. Williams and Miss Corrigan made a filmed interview for the Public Broadcasting Service appealing to Americans to halt financial contributions to the outlawed Irish Republican Army. They traveled under tight security in the United States to prevent any IRA action against them.

The IRA, which ordered its followers to step up propaganda against the peace movement, was accused by the Roman Catholic bishop of Londonderry of conducting a smear campaign. The bishop denied the IRA's claim that the peace movement protested only IRA violence and not that of Protestant extremists or British troops.

Drinking Is Hazardous To Your Ears

Salt Lake City (AP) — Warning: A University of Utah professor of audiology has determined that drinking may be hazardous to your ears.

Martin Robinette said results of a six-week study he conducted at Wayne State University show the stapedius muscle of the middle ear, which normally contracts to protect the eardrum from loud noises, doesn't operate as well when a person is tipsy.

In the sessions of the study where alcohol was used, subjects suffered a greater amount of temporary damage to hearing ability, Robinette said.

The tests showed, he said, "a person has a greater risk of hearing loss from noise when there is alcohol in the system."

Mexican Rail Crash Kills 17

Chihuahua, Mexico (UPI) — Authorities Monday reported 17 persons killed, perhaps including two Americans, in a collision of a tourist-filled passenger train and a parked freight train in the Sierra Madre mountains of Northern Mexico.

The excursion train, two cars pulled by a diesel locomotive, hit a stationary freight train just outside one of the more than 90 tunnels on the Chihuahua Al Pacific railway 10 miles south of Creel, a high Sierra Mountain railway town, Sunday afternoon.

Light planes, helicopters and a wide array of vehicles hauled the dead and injured to hospitals in nearby towns including the state capital of Chihuahua, 120 miles to the northeast.

Creel, nearly 300 miles southwest of El Paso, Tex., is a key rail point for trains which run along the route near the Barranca del Cobre, sometimes known as Mexico's Grand Canyon.

The Chihuahua Al Pacific railway which runs from Chihuahua to Los Mochis near the Gulf of California, is popular with both Mexicans and American tourists. The railway.

considered an engineering marvel, was completed in 1962 after nearly 100 years of intermittent construction through the rugged Sierra Madre.

The train was nearing El Divisadero, a scenic lookout site on the rim of the canyon when the collision occurred.

Jose Maria De Los Reyes, one of the rescue pilots, said the freight train had stopped outside a tunnel as the passenger train emerged from the tunnel and could not avoid it.

"I heard a big explosion as if a bomb had gone off and my wife and I were knocked out of our seats and people started to scream," said passenger Pasqual Sotil Sifuentes.

Rosario Aviaga Arindo, one of a group of Mexico City travel agents aboard the train, said: "Everything was confusion. We went over the cliff and many of my colleagues died."

Opening lead — four of hearts.

There are plays one should sometimes make that clearly king of clubs.

How can you possibly tell that a heart is the right return at one must be willing to make them.

For example, take this deal where South gets to four spades. Let's assume you're East and partner leads the four of hearts.

West cannot have a holding such as the 8-6-4, because in that case he would have led the dummy, which you win with the queen, and the question is what to do next.

It may be hard to bring yourself to do it, but the proper play is a heart! If you return a heart, declarer goes down. You give partner a heart ruff later and so defeat the contract. But if you lead anything else at trick two — whether a trump, a diamond or a club — declarer makes the contract. He does not lose a second heart trick, immediately or eventually, because he eventually discards

DEAR ABBY: TIRED OF ACTING

wrote: "After eight years of marriage, I've fallen out of love with my husband. He's generous, a wonderful father and easy to live with. I have a car of my own, don't have to work, and I know he loves me, but I'm sick to death of faking it in the bedroom."

Well, Abby, I've been married and divorced three times and all three husbands were great in the bedroom. But the first was allergic to work, the second chased women and the third was the world's worst father.

I've been alone for five years and I'm soured on men, but if TIRED OF ACTING decides to dump her husband, I'll be waiting in the wings for a man with his credentials. Sex isn't everything.

He's the first person who's made me furious enough to actually write a Dear Abby letter.

My husband supervises the dining room of a large hotel. He started as a busboy and worked his way up. We have four children who have depended on tips for the roof over their heads for quite a while.

Abby, the responsibilities of a waiter are unbelievable. It's the waiter who makes sure that four or five tables are served the drinks they ordered, and that six different dinners (which all require different cooking times) arrive at the table at the same time, and all hot. He brings water, coffee, keeps the ash trays clean and clears the table before being asked. Many waiters work for eight hours consecutively without sitting down once!

I know everyone who works with my husband, and they earn every tip they get.

SICK OF TIPPING should look around and see how many services a waiter performs. He'll be in for a big surprise.

WASHINGTONIAN

DEAR WASH: A waiter who performs the services you describe has certainly earned a generous tip. But what about the waiter who's incompetent, indifferent or surly? Does such a waiter "earn every tip he (or she) gets"? If tips were given for performance instead of automatically, some waiters would be "in for a big surprise."

DEAR ABBY: Begging to disagree with you, "regrets only" on an invitation DOES NOT simplify matters.

What about those persons who are out of town and do not receive the invitation? How could THEY attend?

"Acceptances only" is much more practical. That way the hostess knows definitely who is coming.

The best idea of all is a firm "Please reply," followed by a phone call should the hostess receive no response.

G.W.H., PASADENA

DEAR ABBY: I like this guy who lives near me (we're both juniors in high school) but he calls me his "buddy." I would like to be closer than that but can't seem to get him to realize it.

He always tells me his troubles, talks about other girls and asks for my advice, but when it comes to a school dance or a movie on the weekend, he asks somebody else.

Should I drop him? ONLY A BUDDY

DEAR BUDDY: Face it, rarely does a romance bud between a young man and a girl he calls his "buddy." Enjoy your relationship on a platonic plateau and don't hope for anything more. Don't drop him because the more buddies a girl has, the better are her chances for a boyfriend. Every buddy has a buddy, and one of those budes can become a boyfriend.
